

In the Highlands

Asilia Africa, The Highlands Camp is positioned in an exclusive location in the far reaches of the Ngorongoro Conservation Area in Tanzania. The setting ensures maximum privacy, while providing access to the diversity of the Ngorongoro Crater. At 8,890-feet, on the edge of the mountain forest hugging the Olmoti Volcano, The Highlands strikes the perfect balance between a wilderness experience and a stylish escape.

Fusing contemporary architectural design with traditional Maasai influence, the eight futuristic domed suites feature king-sized beds that look out at a panoramic view through the triangulated window design. Wood-burning stoves keep the rooms warm throughout the chilly nights and outdoor decking areas provide ideal vantage points over the landscape.

With the Ngorongoro Crater close by, game drives in this wildlife-rich landscape are the primary activity, but guests can also enjoy a Maasai cultural experience, hike the Empakaai crater, or take a Olmoti nature walk, following the trails of the tribesmen – which may end up being the highlight. Everything points towards this newcomer being the next big thing on the Tanzanian safari circuit.
